HONAN COMMITTEE BUSY

Report Of Activities Under Way To Afford Aid Is Received

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, October 5. — Mr. Nathaniel Peffer, who went to the famine districts on behalf of the American Red Cross, has just returned to Peking. He emphasises the necessity of immediate united action among all classes of people in China for relief work.

Millions will perish, according to Mr. Peffer, unless relief work is carried out according to the plans within six weeks by the end of which time the situation will entirely get out of the grasp of the present committee.

Major-General Kernan notifies the American Legation that United States Naval Transports are available to carry famine relief supplies from the Philippines without charge.

WORK IN HONAN

A vast and comprehensive scheme to afford relief to populations in the grip of the northern famine is being worked out by the Honan Famine Relief Committee whose headquarters are in Kaifeng.

Some indication of the extent of the activities of this body is given in a comprehensive report that has been sent out by Mr. George E. Simmons, who is one of the Treasurers of the Committee. The other Treasurer is Tuan Pei-chu. Accompanying the general report of the work in Honan is a financial statement showing recent collections in the sum of $26,693. The complete report is as follows:

THE REPORT

The Honan Committee, though called into being on invitation of the two Governors of the province, has been fully organised more recently from within, with their Excellencies as joint chairmen of the society, and an executive elected from the membership which comprises nearly 200 of the leading Chinese of all classes together with foreigners representing the missionary body of the province.

Strict rules have been drawn up and distributed to all magistrates throughout the province limiting collecting agencies to the one center society and its branches in the various hsiens. Further, the officials in all the districts of the province and all missionaries throughout the province have been addressed asking them to form branch relief societies and to co-operate in every way with the central organisation.

FUNDS PROTECTED

The central Executive of the society has foreign members and the funds are strictly fenced about so that they are certain to reach the objective for which they are contributed. In the northern part of the province where distress is greatest, a local Board of Control, consisting of Chinese and foreign representatives together with a delegate from the Peking Government, has been called into being in the city of Changteh.

The Canadian Presbyterian Mission, whose ordinary activities are greatly limited by the distress prevailing throughout their whole district, have generously offered a large part of the foreign staff to assist in dispensing relief.

POLICY OUTLINED

The Society has arranged for relief under the following four headings:

(1) That as far as possible work be given to those who are able to work, and work of such a nature that they may be engaged continuously until the next spring harvest.

(2) Providing seed grain for the autumn sowing on terms such as the farmers can agree to, perhaps loans that must be repaid when conditions right themselves.

(3) Purchasing grain with our funds and reducing the price to pre-famine rates, that those who are able to maintain themselves under ordinary conditions may do so under this provision without being a whole charge on relief funds.

(4) Providing grain free to those who are utterly destitute. Under this heading we specify the old women, and children, the

CHINA HOLDING VAST INTEREST IN C.E. RAILWAY, SAYS NEW PACT

Tls. 17,000,000 Is Peking's Possession As Result Of Recent Agreement

RUSS RIGHTS IGNORED

Government Privilege To Be Abrogated When New State Is Recognised

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, October 5.—The Ministry of Communications states that as a result of Saturday's agreement with the Russo-Asiatic Bank, China now possesses an interest of approximately Tls. 12,000,000 in the Chinese Eastern Railway besides the capital and accrued interest in the bank, amounting to Tls. 5,100,000.

These interests have been confused by Reuters' reports, but they are distinguished in the agreement.

Comments in Peking are that China is given a good bargain by the concessions of the bank, which represents the price for paying for the privileges of maintaining the administrative connections of the railway, on which is based the bank's prestige and China's refraining from interfering with the bank's claim for French protection.

IGNORES RUSSIANS

The agreement ignores the rights of the Russian Government, which must necessarily be abrogated upon the formation of a recognised Government. But China, in that event, would have nothing to lose, but everything to gain.

General Horwath, the Russian representative of the Chinese Eastern Railway, states that he regards the Russian interests in the railway as being covered by the agreement.

Peking, October 5.—The Russian Consulate at Kirin was closed on Sept. 30.

WASHINGTON INQUIRES

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, October 2.—The State Department has made informal inquiries of the Peking Government with regard to reports that China has accepted certain concessions, recently made by the Russian Bolsheviki. It is understood that this action is a sequel to the Chinese mandate of September 23.

Peking, October 5.—Further enquiries show that China will not withdraw the original sum of $5,000,000, deposited in the Russo-Chinese Bank, for which she received Bank shares and which remains in the Bank, but, in accordance with Article 12 of the Agreement of 1896, she will receive the $5,000,000 plus interest, due to her from the Railway Company when construction of the line was completed. This will be paid in Railway bonds. The Government proposes to raise a foreign loan on these bonds for immediate famine relief, if the

Otto Kahn Amazed When He Sees Progress Being Made By Nation

PROPER TAX METHODS

Economic Plan Adopted Is Approved By Man Who Is An Expert

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 4.—Mr. Otto Kahn, the well-known American banker, who knows France well, has expressed his opinion that France has set to work more resolutely than is generally believed. "When one considers," he said, "the sufferings that France has endured, and the general disorganisation which perforce followed a gigantic struggle of four years and a half, the work that she has already accomplished is really remarkable.

GOOD FINANCE

"France has been obliged, like America and England, to tax herself heavily to meet the heavy cost of the war, and she has done so by better methods than we have. The way in which she has balanced her budget under the most equitable conditions possible, with her marvellous natural resources, with her population so well ordered and hard-working—qualities of this admirable race—has often enabled her to achieve tasks which seems impossible. The economic restoration of France is assured."

Mr. Kahn, who has just completed a motor tour through Tunis and Algeria, has returned full of enthusiasm for what he has seen. He pays a glowing tribute to the tact, ability, breadth of view and kindliness of the French colonial administration in her rich North-African domain.

WORLD OWES DEBT

"I wish," said Mr. Kahn, "that every American who is inclined to pessimism in regard to matters concerning France could visit not only Paris but French North Africa, and travel through the devastated regions. He would then bear witness alike to the sufferings that France has undergone, and to the immensity of the debt which the world owes to her.

"To make such a journey would convince him that the rehabilitation of France is a matter beyond doubt, and he would also feel, as much from gratitude and affection as from personal interest, that it is indispensable for the United States to do all in its power to aid in the restoration of France."

OFFICIAL REPORT

Brussels, September 30 (delayed).—A striking report on the financial condition of France was read before the International Financial Conference today by M. de Fleurian, head of the French delegation. The report stated that the strenuous efforts made to restore the devastated districts, already show the following results:

Seventy-seven percent of the gutted and looted plants have resumed operations and are giving employment to 42 percent of their pre-war workmen.

Of 33,000 miles of roads, destroyed, 14,000 miles have already been restored and are open to traffic.

The collieries alone, having been systematically flooded or blown up by the Germans, still show poor results, the output being only six percent of pre-war production.

SITUATION IN HAND

During the war France spent approximately £8,000,000,000 and the division of this burden, combined with taxes, and now averages a figure of £23 per head as against £5 per head taxation in 1913. Nevertheless the financial situation is now firmly in hand and is gradually improving, the circulation of paper currency being already slightly on the decrease.

Paris, October 4.—Senor Cornojo, the Peruvian Minister to France, delivered at the Brussels Financial Conference an address which was endorsed by general applause.

He concluded by saying that the justice meted out by the League of Nations would be a remedy not only for the world's political problem, but also for its economic problem.

MURDERER, GIVEN DEATH SENTENCE, FOUND FIGHTING

Slayer Caught Here While Quarreling With Victim's Sister-in-Law

Although sentenced to be shot for murdering Woo Sing-tshoo, in 1915, Oong Zien-tshing, was brought up in the Mixed Court yesterday after being arrested for fighting with the wife of a brother of his victim. The Court ordered him to be sent back to the Arsenal for capital punishment after ascertaining that he had succeeded in escaping from the city jail in March of this year.

Mr. R. C. Faithfull prosecuted for the police.

MAKES ESCAPE

Oong was brought to the Hongkew Police Station at 1:45 p.m. on the 26th ult. for fighting with the deceased's brother's wife in East Seward Road. On being examined it was discovered that he was an escaped prisoner from the Chinese city jail. The prisoner was before the Mixed Court for murdering Woo Sing-tshoo at 694, Yangtszepoo Road on Nov. 10, 1915. He was tried before the American Assessor, Mr. Krisel, and Magistrate Waung, was found guilty of murder, and ordered to be handed over to the Military Governor of Shanghai to be executed in accordance with the law. The finding of the Court was not carried out and the prisoner was sentenced to 14 year's imprisonment at the Chinese city jail from which he escaped with others on March 21, 1920.

BRUTAL CRIME

Mr. Faithfull read out the facts as to the murder trial as quoted on the file of the Court, and remarked that it was a most deliberate murder, the prisoner having admitted that he bought the knife to murder the man as deceased was alleged to have been the cause of him losing his job.

Prisoner admitted that he was the man who had been sentenced and had escaped.

U.S. COURT DROPS ENDT-WARD CASE

What the underlying causes were of a somewhat turbulent personal encounter that took place in a room of a hotel on Bubbling Well Road on the night of September 18 between Mr. Everard C. Endt and Mr. Robert L. Ward was not disclosed yesterday when the principals appeared in the U.S. Consular Court before U.S. Commissioner F. J. Schuhl.

The matter was brought into the United States Court upon a complaint presented by Mr. Endt, who filed an affidavit that Mr. Ward had assaulted him and had threatened to shoot him. He sought to have Mr. Ward placed under bond to keep the peace.

Following a preliminary hearing the case was postponed until yesterday and when it was called in the afternoon Counsel for Mr. Endt informed the court that his client, with the consent of United States District Attorney C. P. Holcomb, desired to withdraw the charge and he asked that the case be dismissed.

United States District Attorney Holcomb, who was in Court, asserted that he would not oppose the withdrawal of the complaint and was willing to agree. Commissioner Schuhl let it be known that the court was unwilling lightly to dismiss charges in cases in which a criminal complaint was made one day and withdrawn the next, but he added in view of the position that the United States District Attorney took in the matter the court would acquiesce and dismiss the charge.

Executions Put An End To Robberies

(China Press Correspondence)

Tunghaihsien, September 28.—After three months absence we have returned, to find the surrounding country peaceful, and fairly prosperous; owing to a good wheat harvest. The later crops of beans and potatoes have been injured by continued rains.

The effect of the rice problem in Shanghai is being felt even in this remote district. That this is true is evident from the fact that the price of rice has suddenly advanced more than 50 percent.

In the summer, during Gen Pei's absence, the surrounding country was in the hands of the robbers. On his return he promptly took off a few heads, so at present peace prevails.

Great sorrow and regret are expressed by high and low at the loss of this very efficient official. He is to be transferred to Hsuchowfu.

Million To Die In 6 Weeks, If Relief Fails, Says Observer

MISSION OFFERS AID

The Canadian Presbyterian Mission has just finished a Presbytery Conference which lasted for a week. The first item on their agenda was a consideration of famine conditions and means of meeting the pressing need. Our Committee asked them to make definite recommendations with respect to works of a public and utilitarian nature which we might adopt as a working basis. Mr. Griffith of Changteh, who is a member of our Executive, brought these recommendations for our consideration, and they may be summed up in his own words as follows:

"The Canadian Presbyterian Mission in North Honan has appointed a Famine Relief Committee of eleven men and is prepared, if necessary, to give the whole staff of over twenty men to relief work in that region during the coming winter.

"A program of over one hundred miles of urgently needed road construction and repairs has been outlined, and the question of irrigation works is also being considered and presented to the Provincial Committee. The mission has thoroughly qualified engineers within its own ranks and is prepared to lend their services gratis for advice on these public works if money be forthcoming for carrying them out. Only funds are now needed to make possible the profitable employment of thousands of destitute but willing laborers in this famine region."

ROAD REPAIR PROGRAM

The road repair program extends from the north boundary of Honan as far south as Weihaiwei and Hwaiching and would call for an expenditure of not less than $100,000 in wages alone. The Committee desires to carry out only such repairs as would entail expenditure for wages, rather than for materials that would be brought in from a distance. With respect to the irrigation schemes, we are not at present prepared to make any decision at all till further representations from qualified engineers are obtained. Under the 3rd and 4th headings an immediate expenditure of $200,000 is almost a necessity if numberless lives are to be saved.

At the city of Taokow, east of Weihaiwei, on the Taoching railway, there is at present stored over twenty-six thousand tons of grain, mainly wheat, purchased by merchants for transferring to the north. On representation from local authorities our provincial heads would not permit this grain to leave the province, though at present it is being held there doing no good, because funds are not available to purchase.

EASY TO MOVE GRAIN

This grain is contiguous to the famine area, as a matter of fact, on the very edge of it, would cost very little for transport, and would thus render relief where relief is most urgently needed. The cost would be around $125 per teo and this amount would require not less than $300,000. Our Committee is very anxious to purchase this amount of grain and to that end has addressed various relief committees in other parts of China for assistance.

Agents of the Society have been out in various parts of the province looking for grain to hurry to the center of the distressed area. At present grain is placed in Changteh and in various cities along the Lung-Hai line east and west of Honan-fu.

Wholly apart from the funds reported above, about $20,000 has already been spent in this grain which will be largely used for lowering the price to pre-famine averages.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Following is given a report of the Honan Famine Relief Committee with respect to the receipt of funds, and some notes as to the disbursement thereof.

PROPOSE SURTAX

(Reuter's Service)

Peking, October 4.—In connection with the purpose of the Chinese Government to impose surtaxes on Customs, salt and postal charges, in aid of famine relief, the Government has asked the Diplomatic Corps to sanction a surcharge of 10 percent on Customs duties. The Corps has referred the matter to their respective Governments.

Peking, October 5.—The Gazette announces a 5 percent additional charge in aid of famine relief on goods traffic and 20 cents on 1st Class, 10 cents on 2nd Class and five coppers of 3rd Class passenger tickets. Additional postal and telegraph charges are proposed but are not given.

BISHOP WHITE IN REPORT

London, Oct. 2.—The Rt. Rev. William Charles White, Bishop of Honan, writing in the Times with reference to the famine in Honan, says: "The total failure of the crops appears to be due to drought wherefore there are hopes that the calamity will force the authorities to tap the Yellow River for the much-needed irrigation scheme, which has been mooted for years."

Bishop White declares that the sudden prevalence of famine conditions is due to the extreme poverty of the people, the great population for which provision is necessary, and the lack of waterways and adequate facilities for the conveyance of foodstuffs from the more fortunate districts outside the famine area.

Commenting on the extreme horror of the situation, he declares that, while the coming winter will bring forth, very severe suffering, next spring, when typhus will doubtless appear, will be the time of the greatest mortality. Bishop White points out that arrangements are being made for a relief committee in England, and meanwhile the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank is receiving subscriptions which will be immediately forwarded to China.

Prince To Remain As Custodian Of Peking Legation

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, October 4.—As regards the future custody of the Russian Legation; the Diplomatic Corps suggests that the signatories of the Protocol of 1901 should undertake the responsibility, and delegate this responsibility to Prince Koudacheff, who is otherwise incompetent to continue as custodian, as the Chinese Government is unable to exercise influence in the diplomatic area. It is pointed out that this action is solely in accord with the Protocol, and does not affect the consulates.

PROHIBITION IS BLAMED FOR BIG DRUG INCREASE

Smuggling Of Forbidden Narcotics Doubles In Vancouver

MANY RAIDS ON CHINESE

Opium In Capsules Hidden In Soup—Price Charged Reveals Plot

(New York Times)

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 7.—"Smuggling of forbidden drugs has doubled in Western Canada since the introduction of prohibition," was the astonishing statement to me today by Chief Inspector Detherdale of the Vancouver Police Department. "Our figures show that drugs have been introduced slowly and in small quantities, increasing in value during the past six months. Although I do not wish to say that the situation here is anywhere near as bad as I believe it is in 'Frisco or Seattle, I would say, however, that we credit the increase to the lack of liquor importations."

This statement was strengthened by that of the Chief of Detectives from the same police force. During the last twelve months, he said, drugs valued at more than $300,000 had been seized and destroyed in the City of Vancouver. Raids are being conducted here every week or so, and the police assert that there is not a section of Chinatown which has not been completely combed ten or twenty times. The penalty for such a crime is a fine of $500 and one year in jail.

"Gambling reached such a stage at one time that we were obliged to raid that district every night," he continued. "Chinese are needed more every year in the British Columbia canneries. After some time we were obliged to go to the sub-ruler of the Chinese in Canada and impress upon him the need of his coolie labor. It was remarkable to see the change that occured in a few days. All the joss houses were empty and many of the fan-tan games closed down. Soon the canneries began to thank us for the miracle we had performed. These good days could not keep up, however, and lately the same old situation is developing again."

FOUR TONGS TO DEAL WITH

When asked whether there was much trouble in Vancouver from tong wars and the like the Chief replied:

"At present there seem to be four distinct races or tribles in the city. The Kwongs and the Lees are the biggest factors. Every now and then they get into a little bit of a fight. Thus far there has been no killing. As soon as a fight takes place we raid the joint and get the leaders of the different tongs and clap them in jail. It is astonishing how quickly peace is declared.

"Chinatown here is very tame in comparison to New York's underworld. There are a few joss houses still guarded by the 'have-bar' doors. These are massive pieces of wood, lacquer covered, six and seven inches thick. When we pull a raid these doors are clamped down quickly. Often we have to use jacks to break them in. Sometimes we break the side of a house down in order to get in. Usually it is very quiet, with a deep smoke overhead and a couple of Chinamen lounging around. The hardest labor of this department is proving that the goods were smuggled into the country and not simply manufactured here.

"The Japanese are pretty good lawabiding citizens. There is a little gambling for very small stakes, and sometimes we find that they manufacture whisky on the sly. Usually they are afraid of the police and tell us who committed any crime as soon as that crime has been discovered. We have never failed to find the guilty man in a murder case yet."

It will be interesting to note the change in figures showing the increase in the number of users of drugs since prohibition went into effect. These figures have been compiled by the Board of Health of the City of Vancouver:

Drug.	1917.	1920.
Morphine	105	272
Opium	98	204
Heroin	134	416
Cocaine	92	308
Strychnine	0	69
Poisons in foods	10	16
Other identification	11	118

In this connection it will be noted that heroin has perhaps shown the greatest increase. Dr. F. T. Underhill, Chief Medical Inspector, says in this connection that although heroin is but little known to the police in general, still it stands as the most dangerous of drugs of the present day. It is becoming more universally known owing to the restrictions in the use of opium throughout the civilised world.

I asked Dr. Underhill for his opinion as to how prohibition was affecting the underground drug trade on the continent.

"To my mind," he replied, "prohibition has started a very dangerous disease in Canada as well as the United States. It is without doubt true that every man, no matter who he is, when he cannot get his favorite stimulant, is liable to resort to other means. Drugs are the quickest and surest way of getting that stimulation. While the trade is being well checked in Vancouver, I have no doubt that there are other places where it is being carried on to a considerable degree. At present we are fortunate in having a very good and clean Oriental population. There is no China town here, such as you read of. Personally I have no trouble whatever with the Chinese population.

HOW TO SPOT GAMBLERS

"The gamblers and the smugglers in Chinatown belong to totally different tongs. You can always tell a gambler, because he either wears a red sweater or has the collar of his coat turned up. They are just as clever and wary as the other men. Some Chinese put up soda and other harmless medicines and sell them for cocaine. If the unfortunate victim is arrested he is convicted just the same. The jury holds that he must be an addict because he thought he was buying a narcotic drug, whether it was or not.

"A short time ago a big raid was made, and several thousand dollars' worth of the drugs were seized. They were concealed in a clever manner and discovered purely by chance. For a long time some Chinese had been smuggling opium in inside of canned soup tins. The drug was packed in small quantities in capsules. These were glued together and covered with a thin wax. A few were dropped into a can of liquid soup, milk or coffee. These cans were being marked in a certain fashion. When they reached this country they were sold to certain truck grocers. Soon those addicted to their use would buy the drug for an enormous price. A doctor discovered the ruse one day. He understood Chinese, and, hearing a man dickering for a can of soup at $50, was immediately suspicious. He also bought a can, and the Chinese had to sell it to him for the market price. Thus a very clever plot was unearthed.

NO UNDERGROUND CHINESE

"The Oriental settlement here does not amount to much underground. It is true there are some burrows, but they can't go very deep. You see we have tidal water here, and it rises too high to allow much underground work. The class of men here during the last two years is of a very high grade, indeed. They are mostly the higher element of the coolie class. Our valleys are being made fertile by their excellence as truck gardeners. Their merchants deal with our merchants and the dealings are on the highest plane. There are many college educated men among them. They are shrewd and they know what they are doing.

"The Japanese, on the other hand, are even shrewder. Japanese have bought up the best property in British Columbia.

"We have another type of Oriental here, and that is the Hindu. They work chiefly in the great sawmills. They are a cheap class of labor. There are several classes at present in Vancouver. Most of them still wear their native costumes, and all of them still wear the turban. They have many religious beliefs which have got to be kept up. As smugglers they are quite adept. Often we find hidden particles of forbidden drugs in their beards.

"There are no two ways about it—prohibition has caused an increase of smuggling of all kinds of drugs into not only Canada but the United States. Vancouver is still free from serious underworld disasters, and personally I believe she has great prospects for the future."

Boy Of Eight Urged As King Of New Triple Nation

Prince Francis J. Otto.

Prince Francis Otto, eldest son of ex-Emperor Charles of Austria, is being urged by monarchist propaganada in Central Europe for ruler of a proposed new nation composed of Bavaria, Hungary and Austria. Prince Francis Otto is eight years old and wears curls. If the proposed "triple" nation idea fails it is said Hungarians may attempt to install the boy on the throne of that nation alone.

Fire Panic Disaster Inquest Concluded

An inquest in connection with the deaths of three persons in the recent fire panic in the Flower World, the Chinese amusement resort on Hupeh Road, was completed yesterday in the Mixed Court before American Assessor R. P. Tenney and the Chinese Magistrate and after a mass of testimony had been heard describing the panic a verdict in accordance with published reports of the disaster was rendered. In this verdict no reference was made to the work of officers of the Settlement Fire Department, who steemed the panic-stricken human tide that swept down a narrow stairway and turned it back, saving many lives.

The Court recommended that the Municipal Council should take steps to exercise greater supervision over amusement places of the kind to safeguard visitors, suggesting that this might be done through licenses issued.

DECIDE ON TRAITS FOR MARRIAGE

Ohio State University Students Class Wealth And Fame As Non-Essentials

WOMEN WANT PROVIDERS

Men Put Capability For Self-Support First In Choosing The Ideal Wife

Columbus, Ohio, August 21.—Wealth and fame are classed as non-essentials for a happy marriage in a measuring test to value certain traits and achievements of a potential husband or wife made by the thirty-one men and women students of Dr. Edwin L. Clark's class in sociology at Ohio State University. Fundamental virtues far outshone social accomplishments, and business was most highly appraised as the occupation of an ideal husband, by the co-eds, while the men students declared almost unanimously that capability for self-support made the most ideal wife.

Physical attractiveness in both sexes was marked most desirable, but neither men nor women students declared facial beauty of more than moderate value.

The list of qualifications voted on was formulated by members of the class. They were marked in order as absolutely essential, highly valued, moderately valued, slightly valued and indifferently regarded, with corresponding negative values.

With few exceptions, men and women placed the same value on like characteristics. Among physical qualifications, the essentials chosen were being of the same race; sound family stock; good health and physical attractiveness. Nearness of age was regarded as non-essential, but of high value. Nearness of height and weight were called of slight importance.

In marking mental traits both sexes classed the following as absolute essentials: affection, intelligence, desire for and love of children. Comradeship was also considered an essential in the ideal husband, but only moderately valued in the wife.

In the order of points given to them, high values were put on interesting personality; strength of will; interest in partner's work; domesticity; refinement of manner; taste in dress; dignity; optimism; humor; harmony of tastes and executive ability.

Men showed greater appreciation of keenness than was registered in the qualifications for an ideal husband. Enjoyment of music was ranked higher than that of literature or art by both sexes. Fondness for dancing and cards was regarded with practically total indifference.

High value was placed on possessing the same degree of education, which should consist of at least a high school training. Men students said that good housekeeping and ability to care for and train children were absolutely essential in a wife.

Instead of desiring wealth or fame in a husband the woman students said that a good provider was all that was necessary for them. Sincerity, honesty, fair-mindedness, truthfulness and wholesomeness in thought and action were absolutely essential moral traits for both sexes and high values were placed upon religious ideals, industry, good temper, manly and womanly strength, self-control, sympathy, economy, cheerfulness, frankness and loyalty.

WAITS TO AVENGE ESSAD

Murdered Pasha Said To Have A "Blood Brother" In Paris

Paris, August 11.—Vengeance for the assassination of Essad Pasha, head of the Albanian delegation here, is being quietly awaited by a "blood brother" of the Balkan leader, according to a circumstantial story by a French writer published in the Excelsior.

This man, now rich and influential in France, the story goes, was one of several poor young men who thirty years ago met Essad Pasha, then known as the "Black Dagger of Abdul Hamil," in Constantinople when he crowded into a card game and insisted upon playing with them. Fearing Essad Pasha, they protested they were too poor to play with him, but he insisted, emphasising it by placing his revolver on the table as a threat.

To meet this the "blood brother" put down his dagger, poisoned, he said. Essad Pasha showed his surprise, then his pleasure.

"Young man," he exclaimed, "this is the first time any one has dared defy me. Men like you are rare."

Essad Pasha took his own dagger, opened a vein in his wrist, and also in that of the young; each sucked a few drops of blood from the other, and they became "blood brothers," according to Albanian customs, sworn to avenge each other's death if it occurred at the hands of another.

"I am ready," this "brother" now is quoted as saying, "to keep my oath, but I have confidence that the French courts will make it unnecessary for me to interfere."

Rustem Aveni, arrested on the spot for shooting down Essad Pasha as the latter was entering his automobile in the downtown district recently, is awaiting trial. He was a student who posed as the avenger of Albanian wrongs.

News Notes From Peking

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, October 2.—Mr. Ma Chien-li, head of the Tientsin Red Cross, has come to Peking to promote the union of Tientsin and Peking famine relief bodies in work and methods. A union meeting of foreign and Chinese bodies is being held at the Western Returned Students' Association this afternoon and an endeavor is being made to unite all the relief organisations of the capital under one administration. It is universally felt that this is the only way to prevent wasted effort and money, useless competition and unequal covering of the field, but it appears that union is being hindered by petty "politics" in some quarters. It is trusted that all desire for pre-eminence and for satisfying this or that influential person will give way before the great need.

The Ministry of Education will on October 4 conduct the second and final examination of prospective students for study abroad at Government expense.

The President of the Shantung Provincial Assembly, who has been in the Capital for some days agitating "local self-government" under the slogan of "Shantung for Shantungese," has gone to Paotingfu to solicit the support of General Wu Pei-fu who is believed to be favorable to the self-government movement. General Wu is reported to be now at Loyang, and if the Shantung Assemblyman does not find him at Paoting he will proceed to that place to interview the General.

Chi Yao-san, Civil Governor of Shantung, has come to the capital personally to report the serious bandit situation in his province. He states that since the elimination of Ma Liang's army, the bandits have had their own way throughout the province, and the condition of the people due to open lawlessness is becoming unbearable. Governor Chi also urges the necessity of immediate relief of the famine situation in his province, and informed the President in an interview that unless the central government took steps to ameliorate these conditions he would not return to his post. The President earnestly advised him to return and make the best of adverse circumstances.

Tan Yen-kai, Governor of Hunan, who claims to be the leader in the new federalism and self-government movement, and also claims to hold his position, since the promulgation of the new provincial constitution, by virtue of popular choice, has announced the abolition of the office of Taoyin in his province. The Taoyin, successor to the old Manchu Taotai, controls administratively several county or hsien Magistrates, who will in the future in Hunan head up directly in the provincial administration, without any official between. All Taoyins are ordered to liquidate their affairs by the end of October. Tan believes that his latest administrative reform will save much money.

WORLD'S BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES OPENS IN BROOKLYN

Robins And Indians Flee Cold Wave At Cleveland; Will Play In East First

Capacity Crowd Reserves Seats For Opening Contest At Ebbets Field—Interesting Facts Concerning Past Performances In World-Series Games

By Dudley Burrows

(Amplified from U. S. Naval Radio Despatch)

Another change has been made in the playing schedule for the world's championship baseball series, according to wireless messages received today by the U.S. Naval Radio Station at this point, despatched from America under date of October 4th.

The original schedule, as amended in order to give the Cleveland Club time to prepare its grounds for the world series crowds, called for the opening of the series in that city on Friday next, playing the first three games there.

Severely cold weather reported from lake-shore points has very evidently compelled a switch to Brooklyn, where the series, under the rearranged schedule, opened yesterday in the presence of an enormous throng. Cable and radio delays prevent publication of the score of the opening game.

A radio message from Cleveland, under date of the 4th stated that Manager Tris Speaker, of the Indians, had a conference with his team on that date "preliminary to their departure, with a trainload of Cleveland fans" for Brooklyn that night.

BROOKLYN'S ADVANTAGE

This transfer of the scene of the opening battles of the "big serious" from Indian-land to Robin-land should greatly favor Brooklyn. World-series records indicate that the teams on whose grounds the opening games were played have almost invariably gained a big advantage over "the other fellow," and won a big majority of the championships.

For the benefit of the dyed-in-the-wool baseball fans who enjoy pouring over statistics and making comparisons, the following interesting facts are reprinted from the "Reach Official Baseball Guide" of this year:

HERE'S "THE DOPE"

Greatest single World's Series crowd, 42,620, October 12, 1916, at Braves Field, Boston, fifth game of Red Sox-Brooklyn series.

Greatest single World's Series crowd in New York, 38,281, October 14, 1911, at Polo Grounds, first game of Giant-Athletic series.

Greatest single World's Series crowd in Chicago, 32,000 (park's capacity), October 6 and 7, 1917, at Comiskey Park, first and second games of White Sox-Giant series.

Greatest World's Series attendance, 252,037, Giant-Red Sox series of 1912—eight game were played.

Grestest total of World's Series receipts, $762,405, Cincinnati-Chicago series of 1919—eight games.

Greatest amount of receipts taken in at one game, $101,768, in the sixth game of the Cincinnati-Chicago series at Cincinnati, October 7, 1919.

Greatest individual share going to winning players, $5,207.11, received by each of the twenty-two Cincinnati players eligible in the 1919 series.

Greatest individual share going to losing players, $3,254.36, received by each of the twenty-four losing Chicago players eligible in 1919 series.

THE SMALLEST CROWD

Smallest single World's Series crowd, 6,210, October 14, 1908, at Detroit, fifth game of Detroit-Cub series.

Smallest single World's Series crowd in New York, 13,598, October 13, 1905, at Polo Grounds, fourth game of Giant-Athletic series.

Smallest World's Series attendance, 62,232, Chicago Cub-Detroit series of 1908—five games were played.

Smallest total of World's Serie receipts, $68,435, Giant-Athletic series of 1905—five games were played.

Smallest individual winning player's share, $1,102.51, divided by Red Sox players in World's Series of 1918. Second, third and fourth place terms in both leagues received share in players' pool for first time that year.

Smallest individual losing player's share, $439.50, divided by Chicago National players in Cub-White Sox series of 1906.

WINNERS IN THE PAST

From 1903, when the real "world's series" contests were begun, the winners have been as follows:

1903—Boston (A. L.) won five, Pittsburgh (N. L.) won three.
1904—No series.

Anniversary Banquet Of P.S.A. Indicates That Republic Would Have Fallen Had It Not Been For Tennis Triumphs Of Lusitanians In China

HYMNO NACIONAL

Heroes do mar, nobre povo,
Nacao valente, immortal,
Levantae hoje de novo
O esplendor de Portugal;

Entre as brumas da memoria
O, Patria: Sente-se a voz
Dos teus egregrios avos,
Que ha de guiar-te a victoria!

One would have thought, listening to the dulcet-toned orators at the Lusitano Club last evening, that the Portuguese Republic owed its existence and prosperity, in a large part, to the victories of its nationals on the tennis courts of Shanghai.

The occasion of the banquet, which came as a sort of "finish-but-not-the-end" of a celebration dedicated to the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Portuguese Republic, was the glorification of the progenitors of free and independent government in the land of Lusitania.

Upwards of 100 memberrs of the Portuguese Sporting Association gathered to cheer the anniversary, but most of their breath was prematurely expended upon cheers for the tennis team which won the local Tennis League championship of the year—so the Portuguese George Washingtons, and Thomas Jeffersons, and John Hancocks were dismissed with faint whispers.

But you are not to get the idea that the P.S.A. celebration wasn't a tremendous success. On the contrary, it was a triumph—especially to Mr. R. Carnavarro, nominated by Mr. A. H. George of England as "the best doubles tennis players of the year," and to the members of the winning tennis team.

N. Y. PROMOTERS TOLD TO HALT BOXING PLANS

Showing Undue Haste In Choice Of Officials, Says Board Of Commissioners

New York, Sept. 20.—A warning against haste by promoters and managers of boxers in reviving boxing here under the Walker law was sounded last evening in a statement issued by the State Boxing Commission following a formal meeting at the Hotel Biltmore.

In a joint statement, concurred in by Chairman Joseph Johnson and members of the Boxing Commission and Chairman Laurence Maguire and his contemporaries of the License Committee, it was explained that the announcement of officials already selected for bouts by promoters was regarded as premature, anticipatory and absolutely without authority.

WAIT FOR LICENSES

The statement pointed out that no contest could be held or officials appointed to act until licenses and permits had been formally issued by the authorities in control of the sport.

That there will be no immediate haste in the issuance of these essential permits and licenses is reflected in the rather significant statement that "the License Committee may not be

Tanaka Defeats Knowles; "Tinned" Tennis Balls Play A Part In Result

Japanese Court Wizard Wins Semi-Final Match By Solving High Bounce Of New Balls—Pott And Roberts Clash At French Club Today

By "Forehand"

Tennis-balls in tins were at least partially responsible for the elimination, yesterday afternoon, of Mr. H. H. Knowles from further participation in the 1920 singles championship, S.L.T.A., into the mazes of which controversy he had proceeded as far as the semi-final round.

Mr. J. Tanaka, title-holder for the past two years, eliminated Mr. Knowles in a two-out-of-three-set match at the French Club courts by winning two straight sets, 6-2, 8-6.

Mr. Tanaka took the first set with hardly anything of a struggle—and thereby hangs a tale. It seems that the tennis balls shipped out here in pasteboard boxes during the current playing season have become somewhat soggy and dead; the result being that the Association has, perforce, had recourse to a brand of ball which comes to the Orient in hermetically-sealed tin-cans.

When these "un-Shanghaied" mediums of play were tossed out to the contestants yesterday afternoon they caused both Mr. Tanaka and Mr. Knowles to materially alter their methods of attack. Mr. Knowles, with his hard-driving game, was slower to adapt his play to the light, high-bouncing pellets—with the result that Mr. Tanaka, more accustomed to a varied sort of attack and defense, ran out the set before his opponent could steady himself.

SOME FINE TENNIS

The second set was far more interesting, and productive of some exceptionally fine tennis. Mr. Tanaka took a long lead, securing four of the first five games, and it began to look as though he would walk away with the set and match. But, as the sixth game began, Mr. Knowles took a splendid brace and, by brilliant smashing and placement, ran the score up to 4-all.

Just there was exhibited the finest play of the afternoon, with both men playing a back-court game which was a joy to behold. Tanaka was almost unbeatable on backhand and overhead strokes, while Knowles, by clever sideline and placement "birdies," captured game after game.

KNOWLES IS PLUCKY

After Mr. Tanaka had captured a game and brought the score to 5-4 Mr. Knowles again braced himself; and, in a long deuce game, brought the set to evens again. Tanaka again took the odd game and reached "point-set" before Knowles recovered and pulled the next three points (and game) out of the fire.

With the score at 6-all Mr. Knowles weakened under the strain and Mr. Tanaka ran out the set and match at 8-6.

POTT-WADE TODAY

Today, the weather being fair, Messrs. W. S. A. Pott and W. P. Roberts, the St. John's University court wizards, will meet in a five-set match to determine which shall have the honor of being either champion or runner-up for the season of 1920.

This match will also take place on the courts of the French Club, beginning at 4 o'clock; and, as before, the tennis-loving public is invited to be the guests of the club and the S.L.T.A.

DAVIS CUP TEAM TO SAIL

New York, Sept. 28.—The team representing the United States which will try to bring back the Davis Cup from Australia will sail from Vancouver on November 10, according to the decision of the Davis Cup Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association as announced yesterday. Several weeks ago Thomas H. Hicks, as honorary Secretary of the Australasian L. T. A., wrote the National Association, asking if this country would approve playing the challenge round in New Zealand. This was the scene of the matches in 1911 and by agreement between the Australian and New Zealand associations this year's event is due to be played there.

There has been some discussion in Australia of the advisability of continuing the arrangement outlined, and as the United States has a voice in the decision under the Davis Cup regulations, inquiry was made to learn its views. In reply to Mr. Hicks's letter and later cablegrams, the Davis Cup Committee took the position that any arrangement reached by the Australasian Association would be acceptable here, and notified Mr. Hicks to that effect.

An interval of at least three weeks is requested to afford the United States team a chance to practice after reaching New Zealand, and with the team due there about November 28 it is expected that the matches will take place about Christmas. After these are finished the team will play a few exhibitions in Australia at such cities as Melbourne, Sydney and Adelaide. Arrangements are being made for return passage leaving Sydney about February 1.

The foregoing information was transmitted by cable to Australia and an acknowledgment showing that the Australasian Association agrees was received yesterday as follows:

"Selected Auckland (New Zealand). Dates between twentieth and end of December. Exact dates not yet fixed. Hicks."

CROWN PRINCE PULLING WIRES TO VISIT U. S.

Propaganda Begun To Work Up Sympathy For Exiled Hohenzollern

'HAD TO STAY IN ARMY'

Ex-Gallant Tires Of 'Uneducated Peasants And Gloomy Parish Priest'

Paris, Aug. 21.—Somebody is trying to work up sympathy for the poor, ill treated Crown Prince of Germany in the hope of getting him away from his enforced retreat in the Dutch village of Wieringen, where he was interned on November 22, 1918, and where his only companions are "uneducated peasants and a gloomy parish priest."

Just who is responsible for this altruistic effort is not clear at this time, but French diplomatists profess to be highly amused at it, as, despite the Crown Prince's desire to leave his present home, there was said to be a strong agreement between the allied nations that the young Hohenzollern was not to be allowed to go to America or anywhere else as long as there is the slightest indication of an inclination by a German minority to re-establish the Hohenzollern monarchy.

As a matter of fact the European press has contained numerous articles recently which point to the non-complicity of the Crown Prince in the world war and telling what a cheerful, irresponsible youth he was and how he just had to do what his Kaiser and father said for him or lose his rank as Colonel, which would have injured his prestige.

Moreover, several journalists have been approached by friends of the Crown Prince and told that there was nothing to prevent them from getting interesting interviews from the young Hohenzollern heir. Some of them yielded to the temptation to see the exile, but a majority refused to lend any assistance in getting him away from Wieringen, especially when they learned of his yearning to go to the United States and forget the dream of his, a dream which the Allies shattered two years ago.

In any event, getting a talk with the Crown Prince is no longer a journalistic feat, and he is beginning to feel the effect of not having had a visitor for several weeks.

A more serious campaign is that being carried on through most subtle phrasing of articles in the European press, even some of the most patriotic French journals carrying articles regarding the friendship for France of Alfonso XIII., King of Spain, articles in which there crept cleverly worded paragraphs indicating that the Crown Prince of Germany would have done his best to convince the Kaiser of the futility of trying to defeat the whole world.

It was even suggested that the Crown Prince while directing headquarters at Charleville, wrote to the Kaiser and declared that all hopes of achieving a victory were gone, and appealing to him to save the dynasty, as well as the German people, by renouncing all claims for the annexation of Belgium, and urging the restoration to France of Alsace and Lorraine.

The Matin, the anti-German sentiment of which cannot be doubted, even admits that a member of the staff of the Crown Prince proposed recently to give an interview regarding Friedrich Wilhelm's efforts to bring about peace, but such a palpable attempt to minimise his criminal record failed to attract the attention desired.

Greater Hero Than Sergeant York Arrives With Dutch Bride

Sergeant Louis Van Iersel, who won more decorations in the A. E. F. than the famed Sergeant York, has returned to his home in Passaic, N. J., bringing with him a bride formerly Miss Hendricks De Kondé of Dussen, The Netherlands. Van Iersel came to this country in 1916 and enlisted in the American Army when war broke. It was in the army that he learned the American language. He captured sixty-five German prisoners single-handed in the Champagne. For this he received the Croix de Guerre. He won the Congressional Medal of Honor by getting information under fire that saved his unit, Company M. Ninth Infantry, from annihilation. Other decorations he won were two more Croix de Guerre with palm and stars, Medal Militaire, Distinguished Service Cross, Montenegran Medal and a regimental fouraguerre.

the world, even in the far hinterland of China—but his remarks died in the tin horn of a relative, enunciating the doctrine of "If You Can't Make 'Em Sigh By The Look In Your Eye Will They Wiggle To A Giggle From Me?"

President Gutterres pointed out that yesterday was a great day for Portugal, and for Portuguese nationals all over the world; and that they should endeavor to prove, whether in Occident or Orient, that they were true to the fine old Lusitanian blood which coursed through their veins—but I doubt if more than one-third of them heard it, or differentiated between their Lusitanian blood and the other same-colored liquid which is fathered by the Amontillado grape.

QUOTH BR. TAVARES

Mr. J. M. Tavares made a happy speech, in a low, convincing tone, relative to the feats of the P.S.A. tennis players—and that commanded a bit more of attention. Mr. Leitao, captain of the tennis team, developed this theme and was greeted with tumultous applause.

Came next Mr. A. H. George, honorary secretary of the Tennis Association, with a jolly little monologue on Portugal—local and general—and its conquests. He even intimated, just by way of making the evening memorable, that Mr. Carnavarro might be the next champion of the world.

"Quien sabe?" queried Mr. George, in his best Castilian—and all the world seemed to agree with him.

Followed thereafter the presentation of prizes to the winning players, and songs, and things like that.

"Viva!" It was a great affair!

China Holding Vast Interest In C.E. Railway

FAR EASTERN TANGLE

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, October 1.—Paragraph six of the declaration of the Far Eastern Republic, which was made as a result of the recent conference of the Verdhne-Udinsk, Amur and Vladivostok delegations at Verdhne-Udinsk and was published in Peking yesterday by Mr. Yourin, the chief of the Verdhne-Udinsk mission at Peking, has created an unfavorable impression in Chinese and foreign official circles here. The paragraph in question reads as follows and is unacceptable to official Peking on account of the Far Eastern Republic's territorial pretensions in the Chinese Eastern Railway Zone:

"The entire territory of the Far Eastern Republic from the Baikal Sea to the Pacific Ocean, including the provinces Trans-Baikalia, Amur, Maritime, Saghalien, Kamchatka and the territory along the Chinese Eastern Railway, is declared to be an independent, united country; and no concessions of territory will be given to any foreign power."

The claim of the Far Eastern Republic to the zone of the Chinese Eastern Railway is regarded here as stating more than the Buffer Government at Verdhne-Udinsk is prepared to put into practice in the event of actual negotiations between its representatives and China; and local officials, both Chinese and foreign are of the opinion that this claim was made either owing to ignorance on the part of the delegations at Verdhne-Udinsk as to the legal status of the Chinese Eastern Railway Zone or as a ballon d'essai, launched in an attempt to ascertain how far China is prepared to go in upholding her territorial rights in the zone.

BANK TAKES PART

Coming, however, at a time when the Chinese Eastern Railway problem is up before the Peking Government for solution with the representatives of the Russo-Asiatic Bank straining every nerve to esfablish what they regard as the bank's legal right to participate jointly with China in the operation of the line, the territorial pretensions of the Verdhne-Udinsk Buffer State are important in their possible bearing on China's immediate policy with regard to the line.

The problem of the Chinese Eastern Railway became of urgent importance when the Peking Government decided that it could no longer recognise the old regime Legation and Consulates of Russia in China. At that time the Chinese official viewpoint with regard to the railway was that China should take over the control and operation of the railway in trust until such time as an All-Russian Government came into being, was recognised and could discuss with the Chinese Government measures covering the ultimate disposition of the line. This was Peking's viewpoint, stated semi-officially at the Ministry of Communications and at the Cabinet, as recently as two days ago.

HISTORY OF PROJECT

The Russo-Asiatic Bank, however, is not in accord with the official Chinese viewpoint and has for some weeks been negotiating with the Ministries of Foreign Affairs and Communications for the joint operations of the Chinese Eastern by the Chinese Government and the bank, this partnership to be on a non-political and purely commercial basis. The managers of the bank make the following case for their claim to share with China in the management and operation of the railway:

By the Chinese-Russian treaty of 1896 the Russo-Asiatic—then the Russo-Chinese—Bank was formed and authorised to proceed with the formation of a company to be known as the Chinese Eastern Railway Company, for the construction and operation of the Chinese-Eastern Line. The treaty stipulated that none but Russian and Chinese nationals could hold shares in this company or take part in the control and operation of the railway.

RAILWAY COMPANY FLOATED

Acting on the authority thus granted, the Russo-Asiatic (Russo-Chinese) Bank floated the Chinese Eastern Railway Company with a capital of 5,000,000 gold Roubles and went ahead with the construction of the line. It took up all the shares in the company itself, and these shares are now in safe-keeping in Petrograd. As evidence of its title to these shares the bank has in its possession in Peking a certified copy of a telegram sent to the French Legation at Peking by M. Millerand while still Premier of France to the effect that M. Sahmen, formerly Vice-Minister of Finance under the Kerensky Government and now Russian Financial Agent at the Russian Embassy in London, has signed and sent to the headquarters of the Russo-Asiatic Bank in Paris, for transmission to its Peking office, a statement to the effect that all the shares in the Chinese Eastern Railway Company are the legal property of the Russo-Asiatic Bank.

BUILT ON LOANS

As the 5,000,000 Roubles with which the Chinese Eastern Company started its existence were not even remotely adequate for the construction of the railway, the company built the line on loans made to it by the Imperial Russian Government, these loans amounting to some 360,000,000 Roubles against which the company issued debentures in favor of the Russian Government. These debentures are now in the hands of the Soviet Government at Moscow, but the Russo-Asiatic Bank maintains that this fact does not impair its title to the Chinese Eastern Railway Company as such or its claim to participate jointly with the Chinese Government in the operation of the line. Under the Imperial Russian Regime and since March, 1917, the Chinese Eastern Railway operated at a loss, and the Russian Government has neither asked for nor received interest on its debentures, it having been the understanding between the Russian Government and the directors of the railway company that the former was to receive no interest on the moneys advanced by it until the railway was making a profit. Hence the Russo-Asiatic Bank, as owner of all the shares in the railway company, maintains that, as far as any Russian Government is concerned, it is entitled to operate the railway jointly with the Chinese Government provided that interest on the debentures now in Moscow be paid when the railway makes a profit and that these debentures be met when they mature.

READY TO CO-OPERATE

The General Manager of the Russo-Asiatic Bank in China, Count Jeziersky, has said that they are prepared to meet every legitimate wish of the Chinese Government with regard to the operation of the line.

They hope that China will continue to undertake the policing of the entire railway zone, and they have proposed that China nominate her share of the directors of the company, these directors to be then elected by the company, following the precedent established in the case of Russian Government nominees under the old regime. The managers of the bank are, furthermore, understood to be prepared to advance the funds required for the general reconstruction of the line, either on account of the bank or on joint account with the Chinese Ministry of Communications.

So much for the case put forward by the Russo-Asiatic Bank and the proposals which the bank has made to the Government at Peking. The Chinese Ministries concerned have been reluctant hitherto to accept the banks case and proposals; and the facts that sixty-five percent of the shares of the bank are now in French hands, that the headquarters of the bank were transferred to Paris two years ago, and that, finally, the bank's branches in China hoisted the French flag as soon as China ceased to recognise the Russian Legation and Consulates in this country have contributed greatly towards this reluctance.

The Chinese Government has, furthermore, been desirous, from a purely national point of view, of taking over the Chinese Eastern Railway on its account, partly to have a firm hold on the railway and the railway zone against the formation of a stable and recognised All-Russian Government, and partly to show the world that they are competent to control and operate a great railway line.

FRENCH WITHDRAW

As against the viewpoint held by the Chinese Government the French Legation has already stated that it dissociates itself completely from the claims of the Russo-Asiatic Bank with regard to the Chinese Eastern Railway; and Messrs. Jeziersky and Raindre have informed me that they cannot expect any assistance in this direction from the French Legation alone.

Both parties state further that they are fully aware of the terms of the Chinese-Russian treaty of 1896 and that they realise that French intervention in behalf of the bank is not compatible with the terms of this treaty. Hence the bank must either stand on its own legs as far as its dealings regarding the Chinese Eastern are concerned or put its faith in an appeal to the Five Great Powers for international control of the line. And, as this latter step would involve a violation of the terms of the treaty of 1896 by those Powers which took it, the bank's best apparent course is to depend upon the justice and legality of the case for joint operation that it has submitted to the Chinese Government.

NEGOTIATIONS UNDER WAY

Negotiations between the managers of the bank and the Chinese Government during the past three days have gone very closely into the question of the joint operation of the Chinese Eastern, and in the course of these negotiations Count Jeziersky and M. Raindre appear to have settled to the satisfaction of the Government the question of the bank's national status and the motives which impelled the bank to hoist the French flag over its branches in China.

In this connection Count Jeziersky and M. Raindre have said that the transfer of the bank's headquarters to Paris two years ago involved no change in its legal national status, its charter and its bylaws; that this change was made in the interests of its French shareholders, whose majority interest required protection; and that the bank, while de facto a French concern, was—and would remain—de jure a Russian corporation.

RUSSIAN FLAGS FLYING

In proof of this they pointed out to me that the Russian flag was flying over every office of the Russo-Asiatic Bank with the exception of its offices in China. As for the China branches, the protection of the French flag became necessary for the bank when China ceased to give recognition to the Russian Minister and Consuls in this country. If, they said, the bank had not hoisted the French flag in this country at this time their investors and depositors, many of whom are Chinese, would have become alarmed and a run on the various China branches of the bank would have been likely to result. This had to be avoided from the point of view of every one interested in, or connected with the bank, including the Chinese Government, a shareholder to the extent of Taels 3,900,000 (with accrued interest amounting to Taels 1,200,000 more), and many private Chinese depositors.

MENACE OF JAPAN

These arguments appear to have carried weight with the officials at the Chinese Ministries of Communications and Foreign Affairs; and they have undoubtedly been reinforced by the fact that China has some reason to fear that Japan and, later, a stable and recognised Russia will place obstacles in the way of any attempt that she might make to control and operate the Chinese Eastern Railway on her own account.

In any event the past three days have brought the Government and the officials of the bank much closer together; and the belief is general here that the two parties to these negotiations are rapidly reaching a working agreement by the terms of which they will control and operate the railway jointly and on a non-political and commercial basis.

In view of the great importance of such an agreement to the Chinese people and to the world at large it is, furthermore, expected that a presidential mandate setting forth the conclusion of the agreement and its terms will be promulgated within a few days.

USE SALTS TO FLUSH OUT URIC ACID AND CLOGGED KIDNEYS

Few sufferers from deranged kidneys, uric acid troubles, and backache know what salts to use or how to use any salts properly, says an eminent specialist, who tells us that common Epsom or Rochelle salts should never be taken at all, on account of their drastic action in flushing out the intestinal juices. These and other so-called "morning salts" and powders have practically no effect on the kidneys, as anyone knows who has tried them. There is little chance for these salts to reach even the liver, because they are not absorbed, but almost immediately pass straight through to the lower intestine, thus often having a very pronounced aperient effect, but not through acting on the liver or kidneys in any way.

What kidney sufferers need is not simply a common and drastic saline laxative that acts solely on the lower bowel; they require a curative water containing lithia and strongly alkaline ingredients. Probably the strongest known uric acid solvent and natural kidney cleansing agent is a compound which chemists know as refined Alkia Saltrates. Dissolve a teaspoonful of this in a tumbler of water, and drink the dose two or three times during the day, so it will reach the kidneys by absorption. This forms a tasteless, effervescent, and delightfully thirst-quenching summer drink, to which a little lemon juice may be added, if desired. There is no depressing after-effect, nor salty taste, and you cannot drink too much of it, for this sparkling alkaline water renders deposits of uric acid soluble and painless, neutralises and expels all acid impurities, washes accumulations out of the joints, and thoroughly purifies the blood.

NOTE.—We are informed that Messrs. A. S. Watson & Co. of 16 Nanking Road, Shanghai, stock a specially high grade of Alkia Saltrates and are in a position to supply this remarkable compound at a very low cost.

Leopold Zimmermann, Back From Long Visit, Tells Of Country's Improvement

COAL QUESTION RAISED

Russo-Polish Situation Weighty Factor—Living Conditions Still Bad

(New York Times)

New York, August 22.—The Holland-America liner Rotterdam arrived yesterday from Holland, France and England with 2 652 passengers after a fine and uneventful voyage across the Atlantic from Plymouth, which was the last sailing port. Most of the 453 first and 369 second class passengers were Americans returning home after touring Europe for business purposes. One of the passengers on the first cabin list was Leopold Zimmermann, senior partner of the well-known banking firm of Zimmermann and Forshay, 170 Broadway, who gave out a prepared statement concerning the conditions in Germany as he found them on his trip. The statement said:

"I made a trip to Germany in September and October of last year and returned to Germany again in April of this year, in order to observe conditions at first hand. While conditions were in a state of chaos during my sojourn there in September and October, 1919, I now noticed that everything had changed. The railroads were again running on time and in the best of order. Last year it was impossible to make any definite plans for travel since railroad schedules were shot to pieces; now trains were on time, cars well cleaned and everything in the best of order. To be brief one could notice again the German efficiency and orderliness for which even the bitterest enemies give the Germans due credit. I must state that conditions on the German railroads, despite the shortness of material and equipment, were far better than those which I witnessed in other countries. During my visit to Frankfort the city was occupied by the French army.

"I was in Berlin during the time of the elections for the Reichstag. It was noticeable that the German National Party polled a tremendous vote principally due to the humiliations which have been heaped upon the German peoples by the French. Before the occupation of Frankfort this party was negligible there, but this year their numbers were greatly increased, the result of the French occupation.

"Wherever one goes the people seem to be willing to resume work in order to make reparation for the acts of the former ruler, but what they do desire is that they be left to work out their own salvation. Of course, living conditions are still very bad and this must be taken in consideration in giving a true picture of the sentiments prevailing there. It is possible to obtain sufficient food in the restaurants in the cities, but only at exorbitant prices. Of course the common people cannot afford to pay these prices. The most simple luncheon costs the workingman 10 marks, and at this price he cannot satisfy his hunger. The bread can hardly be eaten and a large amount of sickness is prevalent among the people due to the bad bread.

FOUND MANY SICK CHILDREN

"It is pitiful to hear the reports from doctors regarding the conditions of the children, and especially the school children. Fainting spells are brought about due to malnutrition. In the schools of Munich it has been ascertained that 50 percent of the school children are undernourished and tubercular. For weeks at a time they do not get a warm meal and most of them have to be kept at home for fear of collapse in school. Many of the teachers in the Munich schools refuse to teach the children because they are in such terrible conditions.

"The German people are particularly grateful for the charitable and unselfish work which the American Quakers are doing for the children. Wherever one goes one hears only the highest praises. How many young lives they have saved would be difficult to estimate, but I have been requested to inform the American public that the German people only have feelings of gratitude for the noble work these men and women have been and are performing.

"Whether it will be possible for the German worker to produce the amount of coal required by the Spa conference is a grave question, in view of the fact that most of the workmen are undernourished and not in a condition to do intensive work. So long as the question of coal deliveries has not been definitely settled, a depressing effect will be exerted on the German exchange. The possibility of a further decline in the German exchange is also dependent very largely upon the outcome of the Polish question.

RISE IN INDUSTRIAL SHARES

"The enormous and unprecedented enhancement in the price of German industrial shares is explained by the rumor that the French Government will demand a large quantity of these securities as a deposit for the food articles to be delivered to Germany.

"It is not possible to state whether the recent rise in these shares is due to purchases by the Government, but this possibility does exit. Further, it must be considered that even if the Government commandeers the securities from private owners, such as the Siemens shares, Berlin Aniline, etc., the floating supply will be greatly reduced and thus cause a scarcity in the market. It is also rumored that France will demand as deposit such shares as the Harpener, Gelsen-Kirchen and Bochumer, later on the A. E. G. and Badische Anilin and other large chemical concerns.

"Regarding the quantity of coal to be delivered in accordance with the stipulations of the Spa Conference: these deliveries can only be made if the workers are willing, if they are properly nourished, and if no strikes take place. However, the grave question arises then whether, after sufficient quantities of coal have been delivered to the Entente powers, there will be enough coal left to take care of the German industrial needs. Of course on this question depends whether during the coming Winter the German industries can employ their workers, and if unemployment should result, it may affect the domestic political conditions and unrest may ensue. There is no denying that business is improving and one notices signs of further improvement and a revival of business on the several market places. If German industry will be supplied with sufficient coal, no fear need be entertained that unemployment will result. In this respect the prospects for the various German industries are quite good.

RUSSIAN SITUATION

Much depends on the possibility how conditions and relations between Germany and Russia will shape themselves.

"According to well-informed circles the Russian Government is particularly anxious to enter into business relations with Germany, particularly since they are in dire need of German products, such as machinery, farm implements, building material and chemicals. It seems to be the intention of Russia to have direct intercourse with Germany, that is as far as ethnographic lines are concerned.

"For Russia the 'Danzig Corridor' is a matter of grave import, because direct intercourse with Germany is impossible, and it is apparent that she will try for a modification of these conditions in order to be in close contact with Germany again, as she was formerly. On the German side there is also the wish, similar as it exists in Russia, to again resume friendly relations with each other, and Germany is exerting all her power to bring this about.

"An improvement in the financial conditions in Germany depends to a large extent on the program of the taxes which the Government intends to levy. The German Finance Minister, Dr. Wirth, in a recent address before the Reichstag, did not present German financial conditions in a favorable light, and laid particular emphasis on the enormous size of the floating debt, which approached 215,000,000,000 marks. It is being seriously considered in German Government circles whether they should stick to the tax program as originally outlined, or whether it would not be advisable to make a reduction in the 'Reichsnotopfer,' that is, in the voluntary gifts of the German people to their Government, because this would materially help the merchant, manufacturer and workers.

"This matter cannot be definitely settled by the officials who handle this matter until toward the end of this month, and since by that time a date for the conference in Geneva will have been fixed nothing can be expected until the end of the year.

READY FOR DEMOBILISATION

"Of no small importance is the matter of demobilising the troops and a strict adherence to the conditions imposed. The Government has the firm intention to fulfill all the conditions at Spa imposed regarding the demobilisation of the German Army. Through such demobilisation it will be impossible for any political group to stage any coup d'etat and domestic political conditions will assume a quieter tone.

"The desire to obtain loans from America, which only a short time ago was being widely discussed in all German circles, has considerably abated. They are not desirous to increase the debt load any further, but prefer to obtain private credits in order to obtain the raw materials for the purpose of working them and then re-exporting the resulting articles and for the importation of food stuffs. Hopes are also entertained that the Entente powers will see the advisability of withdrawing a part of the occupation troops and thus reduce the enormous expenditures to which the German people must subscribe for the maintenance of the troops in the occupied zone.

"One cannot demand from Germany that it should work first, and then eat, but should see to it that sufficient food is given her so that she can perform the work expected of her. Then only will Germany recuperate and the whole world benefit thereby. Thus the hatred engendered by the war will slowly dissipate and amicable relations reappear."

Paris, October 3.—The newspapers today devote considerable space to comment on the German Ambassador's renewed assurances yesterday to the French Premier that Germany was resolved fully to carry out the Treaty.

The Temps, summing up the unanimous opinion, states:

"If that is so, the French Government is perfectly ready to view future intercourse with Germany in a truly peaceful spirit. The whole question remains entirely with Germany who, however, should first stop the campaign of calumnies, undertaken by certain German papers against France."

IRISH POLICEMEN IGNORE SHAW

He Finds Their Vigilance Relaxed, Though Press Still Rails At Him

TELLS OF VISIT TO ERIN

Once Ubiquitous Royal Constabulary Isn't Noticeable Now

London, August 20.—George Bernard Shaw, who has been visiting Ireland, sends the following breezy note to a friend:

"The Irish people are pleasanter than ever; they seem to have had a weight taken off their minds. That weight must have been the presence of the police. Formerly I never strolled through an Irish country town or loitered on an Irish pier as a stranger without presently finding myself accosted tentatively by a police officer.

"These encounters were always agreeable enough, as I, knowing what was wanted, took occasion to mention my name, destination, date of arrival, business (or pleasure), apparently in a mere transport of incontinent communicativeness, which was received with the proper blend of hospitable affability and distinguished consideration. But they always occurred, and they marked very significantly the difference between Ireland and every other country I had visited.

"In Ireland I was a suspected person (like everybody else); in England, though continually and furiously denounced by the press as an enemy of mankind, I had to force myself on the attention of the police whenever, as a stranger, I could not find my way about.

"Well, from the Dublin city boundary to the sea at the southwest corner of Ireland I did not see a policeman. On the road, motoring from Kenmare to Parknasilla, I passed a courthouse and a police barrack. Both were burnt out. The once ubiquitous R. I. C. officer has vanished from the earth. He may be in hiding; he is, we know, in certain instances in his grave; but as far as the preservation of law and order is concerned, and as far as the eye can see, he is simply not there. And everything seems to go on just as well without him.

"I asked what would happen if I broke shop windows or fell on the passers-by and robbed them with violence. I was told that if the Sinn Fein volunteers saw me they would take me up and put me in prison for an appropriate period. I was assured that they had constables and officers and commissioners, and the like of that; and I inferred that I had better be careful.

"I behaved myself; and so did every one else. The Castle proposes, it is said, to put an end to this state of things by suppressing the volunteers. How this is to be done by a force which has itself been suppressed is not clear; but the general disposition is not to worry, and sardonically to wish the Castle joy of its job.

"At all events, Ireland is a capital place for a holiday. I do not recommend it to Imperially minded terrorists who have been too audibly urging the Castle to put its foot down, because the foot seems to be on the other foot; and the mountains hide Sinn Fein more effectually than even county clubs hide its enemies; but to the average non-political Englishman I can promise a safe and enjoyable holiday, and the reputation, when he returns of having dared to be a Daniel."

Neolithic Relics Found In Spain

Madrid, Aug. 21.—Important archæological discoveries have just been made near Valencia, where a rich find of neolithic urns, utensils and arms has just been uncovered at Jumilla. The excavating was done under the guidance of the Spanish Academy of History, whose announcement says that the objects found are most important from an archæological standpoint. Many stone knives were dug up, as well as highly ornamented hatchets and stone jars.

Bones of men and women of the stone age also were uncovered. The direction in which these bones lay indicated that the dead were buried facing the east.

Prof. Rafael Altamira of the Oviedo University, has just made a study of the collection and the spot where the objects and bones were found, and has expressed the belief that the place was formerly a village and on the shore of a lake which long ago disappeared.

Free Car Rides For Old Age Pensioners

Hull, England, August 21.—Old age pensioners, of whom there are 5,000 in Hull, may hereafter ride in the trains of the tramways company without payment of fare, following the action of the tramways committee a few days ago. Heretofore this privilege has extended to the blind and to men who lost a leg in the war. In permitting old age pensioners to ride free Hull, it is believed, has done something no other municipality in the world has granted.

The decision of the committee was not put into effect without opposition, however. The tramways manager estimated that it would cost the company £10,000 a year. Also it was insisted that the Government should increase the old age pensions. All these objections were finally voted down, and hereafter old age pensioners may ride on the Hull tramcars without cost to them.

OLYMPIC THEATRE

LOOK! Read what the New York newspapers said about the

"German Submarine U-35"

N. Y. SUN.

Originally intended for German eyes only, the startling submarine films at the big Capitol Theatre are the most thrilling and sensational pictures New York has seen for a very long time. The GERMAN SUBMARINE U-35 is shown in action on the seas and many vessels are destroyed in front of your very eyes, it is certainly a powerful and remarkable picture.

N. Y. TIMES.

The Capitol Theatre has a thrilling picture of actual sea warfare that has created more comment than any film shown at our theatres for a long time. The GERMAN SUBMARINE U-35 scenes are wonderful in every sense of the word.

N. Y. GLOBE.

Nothing more remarkable has ever been shown here in New York than the pictures of the German submarine warfare now at the Capitol Theatre. The "Submarine U-35" pictures certainly stand out as a feature worthy of special consideration. It is a record of the exploits of a famous underseas raider as it continued its work of destruction on the seas. The pictures are unusually clear and are certainly thrilling and impressive.

N. Y. TELEGRAM.

The most interesting part of the Capitol Theatre programme this week is the remarkable pictures of the exploits of the GERMAN SUBMARINE U-35. These pictures taken from the deck of the underseas craft show in an intensely thrilling manner the actual sinking of at least seven merchant vessels on the high seas by the famous raider.

The Republican Position

THE following letter, we think, is the fairest and ablest interpretation of the Republican position in the presidential campaign, that has been contributed to us:

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—In a recent editorial you make caustic comment upon Mr. Harding's statement that he has no constructive policy looking to international organisation and you represent him as asking us to follow him, though he does not know where he is going.

As a speaker and writer who has been actively engaged in this great controversy from the beginning, I venture to challenge this interpretation. It may be well to add that I am not a Republican and that among Republicans Mr. Harding was not my choice. My demurrer therefore is not a partisan protest.

In your editorial, as in practically everything published here, there is a calm assumption that the League of Nations is the only issue. I want to tell you that the American people are "all fed up" on The League of Nations. Such interest as we might normally have felt in the subject has been largely sacrificed, on the one hand by old world importunity and thinly disguised self-interest, and on the other, by the almost inconceivable tactlessness with which the project has been urged upon us at home. Our President has told you confidently our purposes in entering the war. His statements, unauthorised from the first and following upon the heels of virtual repudiation at the polls, were never warranted by the facts.

Failing our ratification, he attempted to compel our endorsement by methods unprecedented in our history. The American people would not accept the multiplication table on such terms. They are vastly more concerned to stay in the saddle than they are to know where they are going for the moment.

Harding's words do not mean that he does not know where he is going. They mean that he is not going anywhere just now as regards this matter. There are friends of the League as well as its enemies who approve this policy. The present project, if not hopelessly discredited, is temporarily under a cloud. I personally believe that it must reappear in a different form with a different distribution of emphasis and under different auspices if it is to win that measure of approval to which the actual temper of the American people entitles it.

In the meantime lie low. Let us forget this talk about pooling the war debts of Europe, about confirming the frontiers determined at Versailles; above all let us forget Wilson before the project is again urged upon us.

But Harding's words have another meaning which is even more important. His first statement after the nomination was: "This will not be a one-man campaign, and if I am elected it will not be a one-man government." That was the real key note. Read his present statement in the light of these words.

Under our Constitution certain matters of policy are determined by the President. Treaties and foreign commitments are not among these. They are placed under the joint control of the President and the Senate. The President must therefore share with the Senate the determination of our foreign policy. Sensible presidents have done this as a matter of course by informal conversations and constant co-operation. The time has come for a more positive assertion of this joint responsibility. This is the significance of Harding's nomination. He is the first senator to be nominated for the presidency and a group of senators (whom you gratuitously dub "the senate oligarchy)" were responsible for his nomination. The purpose was to secure co-operation where co-operation is vital. It is in essence exactly the principle of the British parliamentary system long recognised as superior to our own. May the Senate continue to have a hand in all such nominations.

Harding therefore says in effect, "I have no policy on this subject because I have no right to have one. The policy of my administration will be the joint product of those who, under the Constitution, share its responsibilities."

H. E. POWERS.

As we pointed out in introducing the foregoing letter, it is the fairest and ablest interpretation of the Republican position that has been sent in to us. That it leaves us unmoved is no doubt due to the fact that there is something wrong with the editorial mind. For instance, the line "A calm assumption that the League of Nations is the only issue." We have never said that. We have merely said that the League of Nations is the paramount issue. There are other issues, of course; but Governor Cox and Senator Harding are not far apart on them and they can be settled at any time. The League question has to be settled now.

Then the paragraph about the American people being "all fed up" on the League issue. They are not nearly as fed up on this issue as they are on war. And Europe with fifty million casualties is more fed up on war than we are.

As a result of the war, we are, according to the latest trade figures, $17,418,863,468 (U. S. Currency) seventeen and one half billions of dollars ahead of the rest of the world. In other words, in the period 1914-1920, the rest of the world has bought that much more from us than it has sold to us. We are that much gainer. We also have about 400,000 war casualties, against Europe's 50,000,000.

And now, according to our correspondent, we are "all fed up" "with old-world importunity and thinly disguised self-interest." Having all the better of it, we are to "stay in the saddle" and "lie low." We are not to help Europe.

Europe then is to die. She is almost bankrupt both as to money and manpower, and mentally is shell-shocked. And, according to our correspondent, we are to "lie low."

With regard to the fight which the Republican Senate made on a stricken President, we have already had our say. We have only to add that the Senate has fought every treaty that ever was presented to it by any President, all the way from Washington to Wilson. John Hay's remarks on this subject, as quoted by Henry Adams, suffice for verification, in case our correspondent cares to question our statement.

The position is that nobody knows what Harding and the Republicans will do. They are badly split and don't know themselves. Harding himself admits it. And everybody knows what Cox and the Democrats will do. Therefore a great, a paramount issue, is presented. America has to join and support the League of Nations or, as we said the other day, "buy a cat in a bag."

Are the American people evasive and selfish or are they open and generous?

THE POWER OF LOVE

In peace, Love tunes the shepherd's reed;
In war, he mounts the warrior's steed,
In halls, in gay attire is seen;
In hamlets, dances on the green.
Love rules the court, the camp, the grove,
And men below, and saints above;
For love is heaven, and heaven is love.—SCOTT.

LINES FROM LETTERS

Dear Domino: In your Cambridge slang yesterday, the abbreviation of King's Parade was made "Keep." doubtless the compositor; it is always "K-P."

Undergraduates at Jesus College used to call the church opposite, St. Opp's, (All Saints it was properly); but another church, not St. Mary's at all, was built rather in the style of the venerable Parish church of St. Mary's in red brick. This was called "Bloody Mary." The undergraduate has a sense of the fitness of things, and this particular title conveyed his opinion of a red-brick imitation, purposely built North and South instead of East and West, by a somewhat bigotted anti-symbolist, who also provided for the "Lowest" of "Low" services to be carried on in the place with this shockingly appropriate nickname. —Yours, TAB.

A WITTY RETORT

A good story was told by Dr. Griffith Thomas on Monday evening at his farewell meeting, held at the Cathedral School.

It seems that a young curate tackled Bishop Wilberforce and said: "I notice that there is a verse in the Benedicite which says 'O ye priests of the Lord, bless ye the Lord' but there is no verse provided for curates."

Bishop Wilberforce replied: "O yes there is, it begins 'O all ye green things on the Earth,' etc."

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

The stage instinct in man is profounder than the instinct of the written word. Man is naturally both dramatic and theatric. He is a born mime. He struts, he rants, he apostrophises. He invented the thrilling melo-drama called history in order to immortalise his absurdities. He individualises the ideal of the species, the ideal of becoming more than he is. And finally Death boos him off the boards.

BITS FROM BOOKS

"Adolphus once made a real joke—the kind of joke that makes people laugh. Ever since, failing to live up to it, he has tried to live it down. But you know how reputations stick. Adolphus is kept hard at it supplying Parliamentary leaders with epigrams. Many of his phrases have become household words; for instance, 'Wait and see,' 'Terminological inexactitude,' 'Calculated and characteristic lie,' and 'The Cambrian hills' are all Adolphus's. He plans these little things ahead. Thus, when Mr. Lloyd George resigns, Adolphus will say: 'All is lost save Bonar.' When Mr. Asquith returns to power, Adolphus will say: 'I waited, I saw, I conquered.' When the world is at peace—but don't let's be silly; Adolphus is over thirty already, nor is he what is called a good life."—Lady Adela, by Gerald Could.

Blunders Through Which Allies Have Aided Bolsheviki

BY HERMAN BERNSTEIN
(New York Times)

On the day the Kerensky Government was overthrown by the Bolshevist regime I said in an interview: "It can't win, for Lenin and Trotsky are both extremely unpopular. They had a better chance last July. . . . The popular execration against Lenin . . . was such as to convince me that he will never be able to dominate the Russian people."

These few words were recently reproduced in a magazine, apparently for the purpose of showing how wrong I was in my prediction that the Lenin-Trotsky regime would be short lived. As a matter of fact, my analysis of the Russian situation was correct, for I spoke of the domination of the Russian people by chosen representative leaders, and not by force; I spoke of popularity, not of violence. Lenin and Trotsky themselves never dreamed that they could remain in power so long. In fact, Lenin admitted it on various occasions, ascribing it to the divergence of the interests of the capitalist States.

It is my conviction, after four visits to Russia since the revolution of March, 1917, that the blunders committed by some of the allied diplomats have kept the Bolsheviki in power in Russia all this time and have been instrumental in spreading Bolshevist sympathies to other countries. If not for some of these blunders Bolshevism would have spent itself long ago and representative, advanced democracy would have prevailed in Russia. There is no fear that Czarism would have come back, for Bolshevism has killed Czarism for all time.

CONDITIONS DISCUSSED

It is not my intention to discuss in this articles the failings of the achievements of Bolshevism or "Sovietism" in Russia. I described Russian actualities as I found them during the Kerensky regime, during the Lenin-Trotsky regime in the Spring of 1918, immediately after the signing of the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty, during the Kolchak coup d'etat in November, 1918, in Omsk, Siberia, and during my investigation in Poland immediately after the signing of the Peace Treaty of Versailles. I have seen Bolshevism at close range and have described it from various angles.

On my recent trip to Europe I tried to enter Russia once more for the purpose of studying conditions there after two and a half years of Bolshevist rule, but the Soviet Government of Russia refused to admit me. I asked, through the Esthonian Government, for a permit to enter Russia, stating that though I criticised the Bolsheviki in 1918 I would go to Russia, without prejudice, to depict conditions as they are now, and if they had changed for the better I would be glad to write about it in the American press. But the Soviet authorities refused to admit me.

DIPLOMATS BLUNDER

German, Austrian and Russian diplomats blundered criminally when they started the war. Some of them did it to satisfy their cravings for world domination; others did it to strengthen their thrones and dynasties, but instead they unchained forces that swept them away, thrones, dynasties and all—they released the spirit of protest, unrest and revolt throughout the world. Some of the foremost diplomats have blundered also since the armistice, especially with regard to Russia, so that the spirit of protest and revolt has grown and spread and won adherents in many lands. They have furnished good excuses to the Bolsheviki of Russia for their failure to reconstruct Russia and give the people the Peace and Paradise they had promised them.

What are the blunders the allied diplomats have made in Russia? Their number is so great that I must confine myself to mentioning only a few of them in this article.

First of all, the Allies failed to realise the magnitude and significance of the Russian revolution. They did not see that the war waged between the Kaiser and the Czar could not be popular with the Russian people after they had overthrown the Czar. The simple Russian people, 80 percent of whom were illiterate, naturally could not understand why they should sacrifice their lives in a war conducted by the Czar whose autocracy they ended. They did not understand the slogan, "to make the world safe for democracy."

But the British, French and American missions in Russia urged Kerensky to go on with the war in spite of the longing of the Russian people for peace after their exhaustion from the revolution. They insisted and they threatened Kerensky that they would withdraw their aid if Russia failed to go on with the war, if Russia did not start an offensive.

The July offensive, started only by the force of Kerensky's eloquent appeals to the troops, actually broke the backbone of the Russian Army and gave the Bolsheviki their great opportunity to launch the campaign against Kerensky and the Allies. If the allied representatives in Russia had appreciated the significance of the revolution and had known the spirit of the people, the Russian revolutionary army could have remained a great threat to the German armies for a long time without undertaking any offensive. The Germans would have been compelled to keep millions of men at the Russian front, because no one could tell what a force the revolutionary army really was.

Thus the allied diplomats forced Kerensky to his downfall and Russia into the arms of the Bolsheviki. The Allies did not give him the aid he asked for so pathetically. The allied diplomats counseled him, without knowing Russia, without understanding the spirit of the revolution. And some of the allied statesmen secretly hoped that the liberal Kerensky Government would fail, that a military dictatorship would replace him, because they did want to see a Socialist Government succeed even in Russia. So, by their blunders, they helped establish Bolshevism in Russia.

The sending of an American commission headed by Elihu Root was another blunder which irritated liberal Russia and which helped the radicals to undermine the influence of the Allies in Russia. Mr. Root is undoubtedly one of America's foremost statesmen, but to send him to revolutionary Russia as America's representative showed an amazing lack of consideration and a certain degree of contempt for new Russia.

Some time after the Root mission had left Russia Premier Kerensky said to me at the Winter Palace, for publication:

"I wish the great American democracy would, especially at this moment, come to our assistance energetically, for only in the hour of need can we best test our friends. A deep, strong source of moral help is insufficient just now. It is necessary to add material support."

But that appeal for help, though published broadcast, remained unheeded.

Kerensky was overthrown shortly afterward by the Bolsheviki, who came to the Russian people with promises of land, peace and bread.

During the Brest-Litovsk negotiations between the Bolsheviki and Germany, when Russia was demoralised and disorganised, when terrorism prevailed, when the Bolshevist experiment was being made upon the backward Russian people as upon so many rabbits, our Government was rather friendly to the Soviets. I was in Russia when the President's note, couched in most friendly terms, was transmitted to the Soviet Council at Moscow. The answer was an arrogant resolution adopted by the Council calling upon the working people of American to overthrow the capitalist form of government. And Zinovyev, President of the Petrograd Commune, in a public utterance, boasted that the Soviet had given a "resounding slap" to the President of the United States.

A TALK WITH TROTSKY

On the day the Brest-Litovsk treaty was ratified I had an interview with the Soviet Minister of War, Leo Trotsky, at the Smolny Institute. He made several startling statements to me. He declared that he would immediately undertake the organisation of a Red army which would fight for Russia against foreign aggression, and he said that the allied diplomats in Russia were really helping Germany.

Trotsky said:

"Russia's position is more affected now by foreign than by internal affairs. We have been called German agents, but the allied representatives in Russia did everything to spoil things for us and for themselves. In that way they have helped Germany more than we did. Certain members of the French and British missions blundered by supporting the Polish legions, the Ukraine and the Rumanian armies against us, but the Polish legions, the Ukrainians and the Rumanians all helped Germany. The American representative took no initiative in any of these matters, but he permitted a number of foolish things to be done. We have been called German agents, but I can tell you that Germany has no greater enemy than our party. The Allies helped General Kaledin. Of course, Ambassadors always deny that they are interfering with the internal affairs of the countries to which they are accredited. So they denied that they interfered with the internal affairs of Russia. The American Ambassador acted honestly, but he did not understand the situation in Russia.

JAPAN'S SIBERIAN ATTITUDE

Japan's designs on Siberia naturally aroused the ire of the Russian people, and even the anti-Bolsheviki sided with the Soviet Government against Japan's attempts to occupy Siberia.

When I was on my way to Siberia I interviewed some of the leading Japanese statesmen. About a month before the armistice I asked a prominent Japanese official of the Foreign Office whether there was any truth in the statement made to me by Trotsky regarding the secret agreement between Japan and Germany. He answered evasively, with a smile:

"Well, Trotsky gave part of European Russia to Germany, but he didn't give anything to Japan."

Before leaving Petrograd in May, 1918, I had occasion to speak to the French Military Attache in Russia. He said to me on that occasion:

"We have 'the goods' on the Bolsheviki. We have documents that prove their connection with the German Government, but we will not disclose them because we have decided to work with them."

In the meantime allied military and diplomatic missions in various parts of Russia resumed their intrigue, backing the wrong horse most of the time. This tended to strengthen the Bolsheviki.

Then came the so-called intervention in Siberia. American troops were sent under command of General Graves. The American commander in Siberia was the most sensible General I ever met. He studied local conditions thoroughly; he had profound sympathy for the Russian people; he understood the needs of the people better than any of our diplomats in that part of the world. He was kind, tactful, patient and just. He was a worthy representative of whom Americans should be proud. But so far as I know, he was not consulted as to his views on Russia. He submitted reports to the Government, but I doubt whether much attention was paid to them.

The American army came to Siberia and was stationed within a few hundred miles of Vladivostok. The Japanese Government immediately violated its understanding with the United States by sending to Siberia seven or eight times as many soldiers as stipulated. The Russian people became irritated and uneasy. They welcomed the Americans because they believed they would check Japanese ambitions and appetites in Siberia.

AMERICA'S REMOTE ARMY

The American army was about five thousand miles away from the front, and when I came to the front, at Ekaterinburg and Cheigabinsk, I found just one American officer, Major Slaughter, who was there as an observer. Thus, the Russian people in Siberia wondered what this policy of American intervention was, since the American soldiers remained about five thousand miles away from the front, but in Soviet Russia the Russian people were told that the American democracy had sent soldiers to Siberia to kill the Russian people and interfere with their internal affairs. This naturally incensed the Russian people against America, though, of course, not so much as against Japan.

The next and perhaps the gravest blunder of the allied representatives was the one made in Omsk, which resulted in the coup d'etat naming Admiral Kolchak as dictator. I was in Siberia at the time. The All-Russian Government, functioning as the Directorate, was a truly representative Government elected by practically all elements of the Russian people with the exception of the Extreme Right and the Extreme Left. But General Knox, the British military head in Siberia, was for some reason displeased with that Government, so he helped the naming of Admiral Kolchak as dictator. That act threw Siberia into the arms of the Bolsheviki. It broke the morale of the army and discouraged the Czecho-Slovak. It made the people suspicious of monarchist plots, and the Russians feared the Bolsheviki less than they feared the monarchists. The little dictator could not succeed. The result was that the Bolsheviki were strengthened by the Kolchak coup d'etat, engineered with the aid of General Knox, for it gave them the opportunity to declare to the Russian people that they were no longer fighting a democratic Government but a monarchist dictatorship.

GETTING BEHIND DENIKIN

When the Allies helped Denikin, whose armies, like Petlura's bands in the Ukraine, terrorised the peasants and made pogroms, they threw the people of those regions back into the arms of the Bolsheviki.

The Archangel and Odessa expeditions also helped the Bolsheviki.

When Judenitch started his march on Petrograd with an army of Czarist officers, aided by allied experts, supplies and munitions and money, the Allies blundered again. On the one hand, they had understandings with Esthonia, Georgia, Azerbaijan and the Ukraine, while on the other they supported the dictatorship of Kolchak and Denikin, who declined to recognise these as independent States. And because Esthonia was not recognised by the Allies she declined to participate in the Judenitch fight against the Bolsheviki, and Petrograd was not taken. Thus the military enterprises against the Bolsheviki failed, and the Bolsheviki became the national defenders of Russia against what they termed foreign aggression and against Russian reactionary Generals.

These are but a few of the blunders made by the Allies with regard to Russia. And these blunders have kept the Bolsheviki in power for almost three years now. The Bolsheviki themselves have meanwhile discarded some of their extreme theories which

Marines Rout Governor Of Guam

BY CHARLES A. DAILEY

Agana, Island of Guam, Aug. 26.—"The marines have landed and the situation is well in hand." Take it from the leathernecks they surely got the jump on Captain W. W. Gilmer, Naval Governor of Guam, who returned to the States this month after being relieved by Captain Ivan C. Wettengel. But the marines were ably reinforced by the Shoe Men, who have had an axe out for the Governor ever since he came on the job, sixteen months ago. And they have slashed right and left. The chips fell mostly in Washington and each chip carried a knock at the Governor. And this month the tree toppled over. Captain Wettengel hurried out here on telegraphic orders and got on the job as soon as Captain Gilmer was able to turn over his affairs.

Where the marines scored was in sending home some of the foolish and irritating orders of the Governor, aimed not only at the Devil Hounds, but also at the natives. Here is one just as it appears in the official records:

Executive Special Order No. 52,
May 25, 1920.

1. The practice of whistling is an entirely unnecessary and irritating noise which must be discontinued.

2. It is therefore ordered that no person shall whistle within the limits of the city of Agana.

3. The penalty for a violation of this order shall be an executive fine not to exceed five (5) dollars.

WHISTLING TRUCK PARTY

There! Is it any wonder that a bunch of time-expired marines, who were loaded on a truck June 26 to go to Piti and there board the Army Transport Logan, induced the driver to pass the Governor's Palace, whereupon every man Jack of them burst into strident whistling of "Yankee Doodle"? I'll say it wasn't.

And there have been other foolish orders. A lot of the knockers put all the blame on the Governor's wife. I don't know, but I hear an awful lot. Common report is that she wears 'em and that the Governor has been a sort of an orderly. Again I don't know, and I refuse to listen to gossip. All that I am willing to say is that the marines and naval contingent have a lonely detail out here, and two years to thirty months is far too long to be kept away, especially when one cannot whistle to keep his courage up. It was all right during the war; it had to be done. But twelve months is enough. I was satisfied not to say satiated in twelve hours.

And then the "Shoe Men." These are chiefly petty officers who on completion of their terms of enlistment remained here, married natives and set up in business, often the business being the exploiting of the natives. And right here they ran counter to Governor Gilmer, who sat down on them hard. First he forbade the intermarriage of the whites and natives and the natives joined him in refusing to recognise the offspring of the unions. To stop further race mixture he ordered that all discharges take place in the United States. So these "Shoe Men" have sent all sorts of charges back to Washington, and finally things got so bad Washington simply had to mess in and a new Governor was rushed out here on telegraphic orders.

TREASURER AWAITING TRIAL

These "Shoe Men" made the most of the discovery of an apparent shortage of $14,000 in the accounts of the native treasurer. He is now awaiting trial with an apparently excellent chance of joining the local postmaster in Bilibib Prison in Manila, the latter having been convicted of embezzlement. Then there was Governor Gilmer's foray into the venture of trying to cut the high cost of living for the natives. Leave it to the Shoe Men, who have stores of their own, they made the most of that. It appears that the Governor borrowed $75,000 from the Bank of Guam and invested it in gasoline, in canned goods and in rice. Water got into the ship's hold, the cans rusted, much of the gasoline ran to waste and a lot of the canned goods spoiled. As to the rice, it was that choice, polished and and hulled kind that white folk are accustomed. The natives prefer to do their own hulling and polishing, so they would have none of the rice. And the vision of a profit on the venture turns out to be a loss of $15,000.

Now that all the bad news is out, let us take up the Governor. He has done his best and he has not done so badly. The natives, and there are 15,000 on the island, are satisfied and contented. Their position has been improved; the death rate is being lowered; the schools are making progress and slightly larger crops are being grown. A community spirit is being developed and district fairs held each year are encouraging more and better crops, needlework, weaving, poultry raising and better cooking. Progress is being made in combating tuberculosis, with which the natives nearly all are afflicted, as revealed by autopsies in the hospital, and the next generation may be expected to profit by the courses in hygiene and sanitation.

AT LEAST ONE GARMENT

The people are most primitive. The civilising hand of Spain did not extend much further than the limits of Agana and did not work overtime there. Most of the adults now wear at least one garment. The men wear trousers and a shirt outside of it. The women go about in a long chemise, which would trail the ground if the Americans did not continually fight to have the garment clear the ground to avoid stirring up the germs. A long skirt is often worn over this and for dress a transparent blouse of pina cloth. Some of these are very fancy. Girls and boys wear a short chemise, but the smaller ones do not bother even with that.

The chief trouble with the natives is their disinclination to work and their dread of the night air. They do not produce enough food for their own sustenance and import rice in great quantities. This with fish is their chief diet. They buy this with the returns from the copra. The islands can produce excellent food, in fact everything that can be grown in the tropics. Three crops of corn ripen in a year. But the natives cultivate only the smallest patches. The women spend their time rearing babies and the men rearing roosters for the cockfights.

DEATH RATE HIGH

The people live huddled in nipa shacks, as many as a dozen of all ages sleeping on the bare floor of a single room and in the habiliments of the daytime. They have a superstition that night air causes malaria and keep windows and doors tightly closed. Thus tuberculosis thrives while the neglect of the children, who play all day in the dirt, develops ascaris, or round worm. The death rate from this is very heavy.

It is in improvement in hygiene, in sanitation and in agriculture that Governor Gilmer has made his progress, and even while not marked it is sufficient to overbalance the errors of omission and commission which have been carried to Washington in such magnified from.

The new Governor, Captain Wettengel, is a capable man, who has had important sea commands. He is no stranger to the islands, having been here as an ensign when possession was formally taken by the United States more than a score of years ago. He is also in a position to work out the problem of the development of Guam as a naval base.

Vacuum The Best Known Insulator

In answer to a question, the Scientific American says:

"A vacuum is the best insulator against heat which is attainable. A perfect vacuum would be a complete insulator and would retain or exclude heat indefinitely. The common thermos bottle is an example of the use of a vacuum for keeping liquids either hot or cold. Heat is retained in hot liquids and kept out of cold liquids.

"However, there is a difference between heat from a white hot body like the sun or an electric lamp and heat from a liquid or solid such as may be contained in a thermos bottle. The intense heat from a white hot body will pass easily through the best vacuum man can make, as witness the heat given off by an incandescent lamp bulb, which will char and set paper on fire. A vacuum will restrain heat of low intensity, but not heat of high intensity."

THE QUICK AND DEAD

A famous barrister, engaged in a most important case, instructed his cabman to drive his fastest to the Law Courts. In Chancery Lane a hearse caused a very bad hold-up. The cabman (a real, old-fashioned Cockney) rose from his seat, and in a very loud voice said to the hearse driver, "Nah, then, you're the cause of all the trouble. Git aht of it; your fare's in no — hurry, mine is!"

have failed. They have profited by the mistakes of the allied statesmen, and are prepared to make concessions to the Allies. They openly hold the Allies responsible for the misery in which the Russian people live, for all their hardships and sufferings; they point to the blockade, to secret and open wars against the Republic of the proletariat. But the truth is that the Bolshevist leaders in Russia have every reason to be grateful to the allied statesmen for having given them the opportunity to hold their grip on the Russian people all this time. Regardless of the reverses which they have suffered in Poland this month, they are not yet at the end of their rope in Russia.

The Colby note on Soviet Russia, if written two years ago, would perhaps have saved a great deal of bloodshed. Now, after all the blunders that have been made by the Allies, it is in my opinion the wrong way of dealing with the Bolshevist problem and with Soviet Russia. Instead of leading to world peace, it may intensify and spread the war spirit, and no one can tell at this moment how far the flames of war may reach.

The portion of the Colby note in which he says that "this Government believes in a united, free and autonomous Polish State," would have had much greater force if this Government had voiced its protest more than a year ago against the pogroms in Poland, when several hundred innocent human beings were put to death by Poles merely because of their religion, and the Polish Government, instead of punishing the guilty, simply resorted to general denials. President Wilson appointed a commission to investigate the pogroms, at the request of M. Paderewski. Though the commission endeavored to whitewash the Polish Government, it nevertheless could not help recording the fact that hundreds of innocent Jews had been murdered, and yet our Government, as far as I know, has officially given no indication to Poland that it was not in sympathy with methods of building Poland's liberty and independence upon pogroms.

'BLUEBEARD' OF FRANCE JOKES AS DOOM NEARS

On Trial For Killing Eleven Women, He Flashes With With Bright Repartee

QUICK IN HIS RESPONSES

Public Opinion Divided As To Guilt, With Evidence Mostly Circumstantial

Paris, August 21.—Supreme nonchalance, intermingled with strains of humor, marked the final examination of Landru, the French "Bluebeard," who is charged with slaying eleven of his fiancees, whom, it was alleged, he lured to his country villa in Gambais. Judge Bonin and the jurors were unable to shake the defendant's refusal not to incriminate himself through unstudied responses to questions.

The case will now go to the Court of Assizes with thousands of pages of evidence, including reports of experts who have identified as human portions of bones found among the ashes of Gambais. It is considered likely that the trial of Landru will commence early in the autumn.

It has taken the police sixteen months to build up a case against the "Bluebeard," and public opinion here is still divided whether at the last moment the accused may not be able to produce the women who are believed to have been victims of his charming personality. Indeed, there are persons here who believe that these women may be alive, but are unwilling to undergo the publicity and notoriety that would follow should they come to Landru's aid.

The judge, whom the prisoner invariably addressed as "Papa," found Landru as witty as ever. For instance, when Landru's youth was described and his religious activities praised he replied that he had companions with regard to whom their friends prophesied an evil end.

"But they became judges and municipal councillors," Landru said.

The court was told how through a breach of promise, Landru obtained his first fiancee's fortune, ruining her.

"But look how women have ruined me," retorted the incorrigible "Bluebeard."

Just as he was being taken from the court room to a cell Landru saluted Judge Bonin and handed him a long document, which he had prepared after reading the experts' testimony. With a fine command of words Landru indicated his defense, declaring that the professors and doctors were unable to say whether the bone fragments were really human or animal, as a large portion of them were mixed with the remains of incinerated fowls and dead dogs, while traces of blood in a corner of the basement might have been the signs of a chicken dinner for one of his numerous house parties.

Sati Is Abolished By State In India

Suicide Of Widow On Funeral Pyre Forbidden By Law Says Despatch

London, August 21.—A despatch from Ketmandu, independent State of Nepal, India, says that after a fight lasting half a century a law has at last been passed there abolishing sati, or the suicide of a widow on her husband's funeral pyre. Sati is now an offense under the law of Nepal, and inciting to it and abetting in it are punishable offenses.

The practice of sati is as old as the Shastras, the sacred writings of the Hindus. Close on three centuries passed in India before attempts by Akbar, the famous Mogul Emperor, resulted in any steps effectively limiting it. Finally, in the time of Lord William Bentinck, nearly half a century ago, the right of a woman to take her life on her husband's funeral pyre was limited to wives of certain age.

Later this law was amended and sati was forbidden where a wife was about to become a mother or in the event she had minor children. Thus the wall of ancient custom and religious usage was broken down, until at last the right of a wife to take her own life at the death of her husband is denied.

The present Prime Minister, Maharaja Chandra Shum Shere Jung, is responsible for the new law. During his term of office he has put a ban on the use of opium in Nepal and is conducting a strong campaign against the use of intoxicating drinks.

Pehang Rubber Has Meeting

The annual meeting of shareholders in the above company was held yesterday at the offices of Messrs. A. R. Burkill and Sons, No. 2 Kiukiang Road, Mr. N. G. Maitland presiding.

The chairman said:—Gentlemen: The report and accounts having been in your hands for some time, I will follow the usual course and take them as read.

The planted area of the estate remains the same at 754 acres, of which 457 acres are producing. As stated in the report, 162 acres were applied for and granted. This new area adjoins the present areas and the directors hope ere long to be able to proceed with further extensions. Estimates have been received for the planting of 240 acres, which will bring the planted area up to 1,000 acres, but under present circumstances this work cannot be undertaken. Application to government for 2,000 acres at Semantan was made some 18 months ago. No news has been received as to the granting of this land, but unless a considerable improvement in rubber prices and labor conditions takes place it will probably be found advisable to withdraw this application.

The crop estimate was exceeded by 6,927 lbs. and the yields show a very satisfactory improvement. The cost of production is 1.60d. higher than that for the previous year, this being due to the generally increased cost of labor and estate supplies. Scarcity of labor in the early part of the year resulted in the weeding getting out of hand and putting this work in order was as usual an expensive matter.

The position as regards labor is now improved and the force is stated to be adequate. The proportion of Chinese is still large and the high cost and recently unsatisfactory behavior of this class of labor makes it desirable to reduce it, and endeavors are being made to effect this by recruiting in India.

Health conditions have been quite satisfactory and diseases and pests have given no serious trouble. As with other estates cases of Brown Bast are moderately numerous, but they are evenly distributed throughout the estate and many are being removed during thinning out.

Bark renewal is stated to be good and though during part of the year bark consumption was rather heavy, there is sufficient bark reserve. The quality of the tapping is fairly good, a marked improvement in this and other estate work being noticeable after the return of Mr. Birkemoss from home leave.

The nett profit for the year was Tls. 7,755.58. The very heavy loss in exchange was due to the difference between the rate at which surplus funds in the South stood in the Company's books at the end of the previous year, viz: 45, and the rate at which the remittance of these funds was made, viz: 31. In view of the further improvement in exchange which took place, it is unfortunate that the remittance was made, but the Company had an overdraft in Shanghai which had to be met and the position as regard exchange was very uncertain.

Prospects for the current year can hardly be said to be encouraging, the present sale price of rubber barely covering the cost of production. There are indications, however, that the lowest point has been reached and an improvement may reasonably be expected. In the meantime the company is holding back the sale of as much rubber as the financial position will permit.

A recommendation by the Rubber Growers' Association and Planters' Association of Malaya to curtail outputs by 25 percent until the end of the year by alternate day tapping or resting has been put forward, and this company has given its support to this recommendation.

If any shareholders have any questions to ask, I shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability.

The following resolutions were adopted:

"That the report and accounts for the year ended 30th June, 1920 as presented and circulated by passed."

"That Mr. N. G. Maitland be re-elected a director of the company."

"That the appointment of Mr. C. J. L. Stewart as a director of the Company be confirmed."

"That Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews be re-elected auditors to the company at an annual remuneration of Tls. 300 for Shanghai and Singapore."

Bond St. Sells Hats At Five Shillings

Servants Buy Instead Of Duchesses In Off Season, Says Message

London, August 21.—Something new, if not the impossible, has happened in Bond street. It is "hats at five shillings each." Of all places in the world "hats at five shillings each" in Bond street never had been expected. But there was, the sign, and it was so plain in one little shop where duchesses go and buy at the height of the season that there was a queue outside the shop. Inside it was crowded, not with the fashionable set but with servants from West End houses which are closed for the late summer, and with women from London's suburbs, all of them looking for "hats at five shillings each" and other bargains.

The shop owner explained that it was "off season" and that he was glad to get rid of these hats even at five shillings each. He wants room for autumn felts, woollen coats and shooting kits. That was why the little shop was crowded and the salons of the fine art dealers were empty.
